Experienced Officer Candidate For Sheriff

One of Ocean Beach's long time residents and one of San Diego's most widely known peace officers, Richard Chadwick is a candidate for the office of sheriff of this county. Mr. Chadwick has had a wide and varied experience as an officer. He served for more than twenty-one years as a member of the San Diego Police department and also has been a member of the State Narcotic department. His record includes the solution of many of this county's most notorious crimes. In making the announcement of his candidacy Mr. Chadwick said, "I have never been a politician nor a candidate for or a seeker of any public office either elective or appointive. I have been a peace officer for twenty-five years, engaged in learning the best and most efficient methods of combatting crime and apprehending criminals. This training and experience I have applied to the best of my ability and my record which includes the apprehension of more than twenty of this county's murderers and hundreds of other major criminals speaks for itself. In view of the terrific price of crime during the past few years; a price paid in money, suffering and loss of human life; I feel that the selection of this county's chief law enforcement agent should and will be made on the basis of fitness alone. I fully recognize and appreciate the need for utmost economy in the operation of all public offices today, but I see no need for sacrificing efficiency indeed I believe that efficiency in itself will bring about economy in due course."

I have been a resident of San Diego for more than thirty-two years, it is my home, I have raised my family here and here I intend to stay. If the voters of this county elect me to the office of Sheriff I sincerely promise to devote the best of my ability and efforts towards making this county a better and safer place for its residents and their possessions."

Mr. Chadwick has established headquarters and will be pleased to meet friends and acquaintances at 123 C street. Phone is Franklin 2597.

In honor of All-Kiwanis Night a district meeting was held at the El Cortez hotel Monday evening last. Ocean Beach was well represented with 16 members and ladies being present.

O. M. SWOPE

Candidate for County Recorder

Swope's record of proved thrift is more substantial than promises. That is the taxpayers' answer to the candidacy of O. M. Swope for the office of county recorder—which he now holds—according to persons who have substantiated his record of economy thru the auditor's statements. "The ability and economy Swope has shown during his term in office is outstanding in the history of the department," declare these persons. "His record shows a yearly gain in profit against a yearly decrease in business, with the exception of one year—and it still shows a material profit for that year. His phenomenal ability made possible this gain despite that free filing of various papers, increased many per cent since he took office, contributes an $8,000 a year loss in profits with a corresponding increase in office expense."

"Year to year he has decreased his budget while increasing the efficiency of his office. It has taken one man's full time to put in shape vital records that other recorders have pigeon-holed indiscriminately."

"He installed a new index book system—at no extra cost—using one set of books in place of the former 22 sets. This results in the saving each year of 56 major books costing $23 apiece and an undetermined number of record books. $5700 a year is the saving on books under Swope's new system; 4 men instead of the former 7 now do the indexing. The efficiency of the recorder's office has been increased 100%. Persons using the records are saved an incalculable amount of time and trouble."

"Swope buys his books and material in San Diego county. Former recorders patronized firms in larger cities. Swope saves $12 on every book he buys in San Diego county despite a $3 increase in price. The books he buys in San Diego county are of better material and greatly improved. Due to this policy many local firms are prospering and many people have been added to their pay-rolls.—Advertisement."

A luncheon and card party will be given by ladies of the Sacred Heart church Thursday, June 21st, at the home of Mrs. George Turskey, 5053 Muir avenue. Bridge and 500 Mrs. Turskey will be hostess assisted by Mrs. Dora Turskey, Mrs. Thomas Kyle and Mrs. Katherine Isom.

Elementary School Has Christian Science Outstanding Graduates Lecture Sunday

Promotion exercises were held Thursday morning at the Ocean Beach elementary school for a small but in many ways outstanding class of thirty four high sixth grade pupils. The class will be remembered as one which lead both in athletics and academic school work. Their citizenship, sportmanship, and interest in school place them as one of the best classes which attended the Ocean Beach school in recent years.

Promotion exercises were held in the school court at 10:15 a. m. Student chairman of the exercises was Price Alvarado. The program opened with several songs by the kindergarten choir, directed by Miss Carol Eaton, kindergarten teacher. A talk "Farewell to the High Six" was given by Yvonne Grabau of the low six grade, followed by a talk "Goodbye to the School" by James Masters, high six grade. Mr. Barbour the principal, presented the honor pins to those pupils who have earned them through good citizenship. After a final short talk by Mr. Barbour the exercises were closed with the singing of America.

The outstanding position open to pupils in the high six grade is that of student chairman at the daily opening exercises. Four of the present class have earned that honor; they are Jean Denny, Lois Blackwell, Winfred Plant and Howard Hockenberry.

Seventeen of the thirty four pupils have earned honor pins for citizenship in the fifth and sixth grades. They are: Masao Yoshimine, Winfred Plant, Lawrence Eulberg, Bob Reed, Howard Harvey, Howard Hockenberry, Lloyd Rice, Leland Oberholser, Lois Blackwell, June Clark, Hazel Hertz, Katherine Madigan, Harriet Dunn, Marjorie Salter, Barbara McCarty and Jean Denny.

Thirteen of the pupils have attended the Ocean Beach school straight through from the kindergarten. They are: Donald Schneider, Katherine Madigan, Howard Harvey, Arthur Leroy, Winfred Plant, Josephine Lohman, Margaret Milligan, Watson Allan, Robert Barlow, Harriet Dunn, Lawrence Eulberg, Thomas Cole and Price Alvarado.

Members of the class are:

Musings About Things Interesting To You and Me

(BY THE EDITOR)

The Old Age Pension has been the main topic of conversation for many groups the past two weeks. Its sponsors set out a rosy picture which condition it would no doubt create, if it could be made a possibility. Some think the $200 per month is too much while others tell us that it is not and could be made even more with the age brought down to fifty years instead of sixty as under Dr. Townsend's plan. The main objection seems to be the financing under a sales tax. Many sections of our country have similar ideas. In the South Huey Long has organized a Share the Wealth Society which has a million and a quarter people on its petitions. The pension plan for the older people is good, the objective we think will be reached in some manner within two or three years. From the different sections come different ideas and from all these we have no doubt but that good will result and some plan be evolved for the benefit of our citizens.

People who are enthusiastic in their support of political candidates should be careful in regard to sticker use in their autos. Do not clutter your wind shield so you do not have full front and side vision. Section 98 1/2 of the Motor Vehicle act says: "It shall be unlawful for any person to drive any motor vehicle upon a highway with any sign, poster, card, sticker or other non-transparent matter upon the front windshield, side wings, side or rear windows of such vehicle unless the same shall be placed within a seven inch square in the lower right hand corner of the windshield on motor vehicles with a left hand drive."

The SERA when announced said that every person needing work should have it. After two months we find much dissatisfaction and believe it to be a great injustice the way it is being conducted. Only those who have been on county welfare rolls are being considered. The people who have by their extreme frugality and careful management enabled themselves to stay off county welfare, but who are nevertheless in want, are given no consideration whatsoever. How long we wonder will the decent citizen have to suffer and subsist on promises which never materialize.

Mrs. R. F. Smith, 4623 Coronado avenue, recently suffered a cracked collar bone, thru a jar to her arm when closing the door of the automobile. Her friends wish for her a speedy recovery.

HAROLD LLOYD PAVES THE WAY TO DURBAR

The Durbar was attended from Ocean Beach by Fred Kraft, Dr. Bailey, Chas. Barber and Harry Sweet. From San Diego besides many members of the Al Bahr Temple were its band, drum corps and patrol.

Essay Contest Closing Old Time Barbecue Postponed to June 22 Plans Progressing

Closing date for entries in Bank of America's $10,000 scholarship competition has been deferred to June 22, and essays submitted by that date will be eligible for consideration by the judges, it was announced today.

The change in the closing date was instituted in order to avoid conflict with the closing of the California schools for the summer vacation, bank officials said.

The bank is offering 414 scholarships and cash awards for the best essays on the subject of "The World of 1964". Two primary awards of $2,000 scholarships, to be utilized at any university for which the two winners can qualify scholastically, are offered.

Judges in the competition are Presidents Robert Gordon Sproul of the University of California, Ray Lyman Wilbur of Stanford and Rufus B. Von Kleinsmid of University of Southern California.

Candidates in the scholarship competition are limited in age to 18 years or under. Essays are restricted to 1,000 words. The writers, whose age indicates their opportunity to become the leaders of tomorrow, may write in general on life in 1964, or may take up any particular phase of human activity in which they are interested: Science, agriculture, art, business, medicine or the law for example.

THE CROONER'S THEME

What is this thing?
You call it love—
With throaty sounds
Like cooing doves.
You desecrate love's sacred
name,
With shallow words
To fleeting flames.

What is this thing?
You call it love—
With silly song
To callow dubs.
Go find the real
And know the bliss,
Of heaven-born love
With hallowed kiss.

—Betty Jordan.

The judicial determination of the boundaries of Mission Bay State Park was advanced here today by Warner I. Praul, assistant attorney general who came to confer with Assemblyman George B. Bowers, P. H. Van Etten of the State Water Resources and others, preliminary to filing suits to quiet title on those portions of the boundaries not yet definitely fixed.

Mr. Praul stated that he had orders "to stay on the job 'till it is completed."

House Committee Votes to Impeach Judge Woodward—
Troops Suppress Labor Riots in Two States—
Chicago's Fair Reopened.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

FIFTEEN of twenty members of the house committee on judiciary voted for impeachment action against Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward of Chicago, and it was announced that formal charges against him would be drawn up and presented on the floor of the house within a few days. The house must then decide the matter of impeachment and if it finds the charges substantiated the jurist will be tried at the bar of the senate. According to reports in Washington, flagrant nepotism was to be the major charge against Judge Woodward, this being based on evidence showing he appointed the law firm of Loucks, Eckert & Peterson to many lucrative attorneys' fees in bankruptcy and equity receivership cases; that his son, Harold, was employed by that firm, and that Harold's compensation was raised from about $2,000 to $13,000 a year soon after Judge Woodward began making those appointments.

Judge C. E. Woodward

The vote in the committee was non-partisan. Three members were absent. Eleven Democrats and four Republicans voted for impeachment. Of the five casting their ballots against impeachment four were Republicans, one was a Democrat.

It may be the Woodward case will set a precedent in impeachment trials. To avoid a summer session of the senate, Senator Ashurst of Arizona has offered a resolution providing that an impeachment case may be first heard by 12 senators instead of by the entire senate. These twelve would hear the testimony and present it in a certified report to the senate at the next session.

LABOR troubles became so serious that state troops were mobilized in Minneapolis and in Toledo, Ohio, and despite the presence of soldiers there was a great deal of rioting and violence. In Minneapolis the striking teamsters and building tradesmen rejected an order of the regional labor board to end the strike immediately and insisted on fighting to a finish. The employers had accepted the labor board's terms. Governor Olson had brought 3,700 men of the National Guard to the city. In the midst of the disorder on the streets, Congressman Francis H. Shoemaker was arrested for inciting violence and was found guilty, being given the choice of ten days' confinement in the workhouse or a $50 fine.

Toledo's battle centered about the plant of the Electric Auto-Lite company in which 1,800 non-striking employees had been besieged for fifteen hours by a great mob of riotous strikers and frequently fired upon by snipers on the roofs of nearby buildings. The windows of the plant were all broken by stones, and torches thrown through them started many fires. The police used tear gas bombs but were roughly handled by the mobs, so six companies of state troops were called out and they, marching with fixed bayonets, scattered the strikers and released the imprisoned employees.

Later the strikers and their friends gathered again and fought furiously with the troops, showering them with bricks and paving stones. Dozens of soldiers were injured and finally the exasperated guardsmen fired on the mobs, two rioters being killed and many wounded. Tear gas and the more powerful "knockout" gas were freely used by both sides.

Charles P. Taft, son of the late President, was sent from Washington to Toledo as special mediator for the national labor board of the NRA.

SENATOR ROBINSON, majority leader, heard rumors that some senators were planning a filibuster for the purpose of killing the administration's tariff bargaining bill. He said he was ready to "squell" any such scheme by prolonging the daily sessions of the senate. "If that is the intention we will meet at 10 a. m. and stay until 8 p. m.," he said. "And, if that doesn't work, we'll come here at 9 a. m. and stay till the same hour in the evening."

The house, after two days of work, passed the administration's industry loan bill and sent it back to the senate. The senate had approved a bill fixing the maximum total RFC five-year loans at $250,000,000 and limiting the amount the twelve federal reserve banks could advance to $250,000,000.

But the house discarded the senate provisions and inserted its own, which increase the RFC total to $300,000,000 and cut the reserve bank maximum to $140,000,000. The differences were to be adjusted in conference.

Sen. Robinson

CLARENCE DARROW's report on the NRA, submitted some time ago to President Roosevelt, has been made public, and in the main it was just what was expected from the Chicago lawyer and his colleagues. It analyzed eight of the more important codes and found that seven of them foster monopolies, help big business and do a lot toward putting small concerns out of business. These seven codes are: Electrical manufacturing, footwear division, rubber manufacturing, motion pictures, retail solid fuel, steel, ice, and bituminous coal. The report found no monopolistic features in the cleaners and dyers' code.

Administrator Johnson and his chief counsel, Donald R. Richberg, had been given the report previously for the purpose of composing a reply to it. This they did, to the extent of 50,000 vigorous words. They answered all the Darrow charges and asserted the report was "superficial," "intemperate," "inaccurate," "prejudiced," "one sided," "inconsistent," "nonsensical," "insupportable," "false," and "anarchistic."

Darrow came back with a caustic answer that drew further violent language from the NRA chiefs, and the battle then became general. Senator Gerald P. Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, a supporter of Darrow's views, spoke for hours in the senate, demanding that congress stay in session until the existing "abuses" are corrected.

Next came a bitter attack from organized labor, asserting that the Darrow board's report was "a disservice to the nation and its citizens in a time of great economic stress."

A row broke out in the Darrow group that left several members not on speaking terms with one another. William O. Thompson, a member of the board, accused Lowell Mason, the board's counsel, of tampering with the records, and Mason's one-time connection with the Insull interests was brought up.

Darrow and General Johnson, strangely enough, took a social ride to Mount Vernon in the administrator's car, but seemingly all they talked about was history and religion.

PAT HURLEY, former secretary of war, appeared before the senate civil service committee in a warlike mood and angrily demanded that there be a full examination of charges that he was party to a patronage plot hatched by Republicans at his home in Virginia. He declared that it should be determined whether the Department of Justice is out to smear all members of the preceding administration or whether A. V. Dalrymple, the special assistant attorney general who made the charges, is "just an irresponsible falsifier in charge of the wooden pistol section of the Department of Justice."

Mr. Dalrymple read to the committee letters from C. W. Broom and Lee Shannon, who told the Justice department assistant that persons whom they declined to name had informed them of the meeting at Hurley's home, where prominent Republicans were alleged to have planned how they could hold on to patronage jobs despite the change in administration. Dalrymple denied that he had made the charges himself.

CHICAGO'S exposition, A Century of Progress, was reopened for another summer with a big military parade and much ceremony. The fair has been reconstructed and redecorated and is a bigger and better exposition this year than the one that called forth so much enthusiastic praise in 1933. The best of the former exhibits and features have been retained, but many new ones have been added and everything has been brought up to date. There are 12 new foreign villages for the edification and amusement of visitors; the Chicago and Detroit symphony orchestras will give long series of fine concerts; the scientific and manufacturers' exhibits have been vastly improved and enlarged; the "Midway," bettered in various ways, has been moved to the lake front of the island; and the entire exposition is resplendent with new colors and new lighting.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT told congress what kind of silver bill he was willing to accept—the compromise explained in this column recently—and such a measure was promptly introduced by Senator Key Pittman. Some members of the silver bloc were far from satisfied with the bill, but there was every indication that it would be passed before the end of the session, the senators from the silver states accepting it in lieu of anything better from their point of view. If they sought to defeat it the probable result would be a long fight and no silver bill whatever. The bill really leaves to the discretion of the President the making of silver a part of the monetary system and the stabilization of its price.

IF REPORTS from Peiping are true, the Japanese have perpetrated another outrage on the helpless Chinese in Manchukuo. The story is that Chinese farmers in the southeastern part of the puppet state refused to give up their arms on demand of the Japanese troops and that as a result army planes bombed twenty farm villages, killing a thousand persons, injuring hundreds of others and destroying all the homes. An explanation from Tokyo, claiming the farmers were really bandits or rebels, may be expected soon.

CONSTITUTIONAL government has been discarded by another European nation. In a bloodless coup d'etat the Bulgarian army took control of that country under a military dictatorship. King Boris either sponsored the movement or quietly yielded to it. He promptly signed about thirty decrees that were prepared in advance, dissolving the parliament and putting the new government in power, with Kimon Gueorguev as premier.

King Boris

Members of the former government and several other persons were arrested. Not only in Sofia, the capital, but throughout the country the military leaders were in control.

The program of the new government was set forth in a long manifesto calling for the creation of a disciplined, orderly state. The principal alterations in the structure of the government include a sharply reduced membership in the legislature, which is to be under firm control of the administration, a reduction in number of the country's political subdivisions, a general weeding out of municipal and provincial authorities, and an intensification of attention upon the interests of villages and rural regions.

Boris, the forty-year-old king, may be relegated to a position of comparative unimportance, as was the king of Italy by Mussolini and his Fascists. But Boris is known as a good fighter and perhaps he can keep himself at the head of his people in fact as well as in name.

WHILE the Paraguayans and the Bolivians were engaged in the biggest and most important battle in the Chaco war, with between 60,000 and 80,000 men on both sides, the League of Nations council at Geneva sent cables to 31 governments asking if they would put an arms embargo on the two nations. This action was taken after the council had adopted a resolution favoring such an embargo at the earliest possible moment, in accord with the message given the congress and the world by President Roosevelt. The State department in Washington was pursuing conversations with Peru, Chile, Brazil and Argentina in the effort to bring an end to the bloody fighting in the Gran Chaco. Bolivian Minister Ffnet objected strongly to the proposed embargo, asserting it would impose an injustice on Bolivia because Paraguay has an arms and munitions factory and Bolivia has none.

Good news came from Rio de Janeiro, where representatives of Peru and Colombia reached a peaceful settlement of the differences between their nations over the jungle border village of Leticia and thus dissipated a war cloud which has hung over South America for twenty months.

FOR more than thirty years the radical La Folletteites of Wisconsin have been operating as Republicans and under that label have competed, often with success, for control of the state. Now this is to be changed. With the aid of delegates from labor and farm organizations, the followers of Senator La Follette, assembled in convention in Fond du Lac, formed a new party and named it the Progressive party. No statement of principles was made, all attempts to bring one forth being squelched.

Senator La Follette kept in the background until questions of organization were settled. With the party name decided, the senator came into the picture with a prepared speech.

The period called Republican prosperity, he said, had culminated in the collapse of the country's economic life. "The disaster of 1929 and the acute distress and suffering of the American people that followed were made possible by the betrayal of the people's trust by men in both parties, controlled through their party organizations by privileged interests."

A few hours later a state central committee was formed, with former Gov. Philip La Follette as its chairman, and in Milwaukee it began mapping out the campaign for the autumn congressional and state elections.

APPROXIMATELY $8,000,000 damage was done by a conflagration in Chicago that was described as the worst that city had experienced since the great fire of 1871. It started in the Union Stock Yards, familiar to all visitors to the city, and within a few hours had swept over an area equivalent to about eight city blocks. The flames also leaped across Halsted street, destroying many shops and residences. Happily only one human life was lost, though the injured, mostly firemen, numbered some 1,100. As the stock pens were comparatively empty over the week-end, the loss of live stock was restricted.

"All Aboard for the Juvenile Bus Special"

A wooden bus, drawn by a tricycle and jammed with gleeful youngsters, made its appearance in Central Park West, New York City. The bus was constructed entirely by six and seven-year-old children at the Walden school. It has seats for six, straps for "sardines" and a place to hang on behind.

Cubans Greet an Ex-President

Ramon Grau San Martin, former provisional president of Cuba, was carried on the shoulders of the welcoming committee as he arrived at Havana from Mexico on the liner Sierra Vertana. Although he refrained from a formal declaration, he intimated that he would accept the nomination of the Revolutionary party to run for the presidency in the next election. Grau San Martin was so affected by the reception that he had to have medical treatment.

She is the youngest champion of a major golfing organization in the world. Betty is a sophomore in Sunset high school, Dallas. At thirteen years of age she won both the Dallas municipal and Texas public course titles. This spring she won the Dallas city title.

Tercentennial of the First Passion Play

THREE hundred years ago, in 1634, the pious peasants of Oberammergau, a little village in the Bavarian Alps of southern Germany, gave the first presentation of the Passion Play. This was in fulfillment of a vow made the previous year for relief from the plague that had devastated Europe following the Thirty Years war. For three centuries the folk of Oberammergau have kept the vow and the performance this summer marks the tercentennial of the play. Oberammergau is prepared to take care of a great throng.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

AN ALL-DAY SONGSTER

OVER in a maple tree on the edge of Farmer Brown's dooryard lived Redeye the Vireo and his little mate. Peter Rabbit knew that they had a nest there, because Jenny Wren had told him so. He would have guessed it anyway, because Redeye spent so much time in that tree. No matter what hour of the day Peter visited the Redeye Was a Little Fellow of About the Size of One of the Warblers.

Old Orchard, he heard Redeye singing over in the maple tree. He thought to himself that if song is an expression of happiness, Redeye must be the happiest of all birds.

Redeye was a little fellow of about the size of one of the Warblers and quite as modestly dressed as any of Peter's acquaintances. The crown of his head was gray with a little blackish border. Underneath he was white. For the rest, he was dressed in light olive green. The first time he came down near enough for Peter to see him well, Peter understood why he is called Redeye. His eyes were red. Yes, sir, his eyes were red, and this fact alone was enough to distinguish him from any other members of his family.

But it wasn't often that Redeye came down so near the ground that Peter could see his eyes. He preferred to spend most of his time in the tree tops, and Peter only got glimpses of him now and then. But if he didn't see him often, it was less often that he failed to hear him. "I don't see when Redeye finds time to eat," declared Peter as he listened to the seemingly unending song in the maple tree.

"Redeye believes in singing while he works," said Jenny Wren. "For my part, I should think he'd wear his throat out. Just listening to him makes my own throat sore. When other birds sing they don't do anything else, but Redeye sings all the time he is hunting his meals, and only stops long enough to swallow a worm or a bug when he finds it. Just as soon as it is down he begins to sing again while he hunts for another. I must say for the Redeyes that they are mighty good nest builders. Have you seen their nest over in that maple tree, Peter?"

Peter shook his head. "You probably couldn't see it anyway," declared Jenny Wren. "It is high up, and those leaves are so thick that they hide it. It's a regular little basket fastened in a fork near the end of a branch. And it is woven almost as nicely as is the nest of Goldy the Oriole."

"What's it made of?" asked Peter. "Strips of bark, plant down, spider's web, grass, and pieces of paper," replied Jenny. "That's a funny thing about Redeye—he dearly loves a piece of paper in his nest. He's as fussy about having a scrap of paper as Cressy the Flycatcher is about having a piece of snakeskin. I had just a peep into the nest a few days ago, and unless I am greatly mistaken, Sally Sly the Cowbird has greatly imposed on the Redeyes. I am certain I saw one of her eggs in their nest."

DAINTY DESSERTS

THERE is no dessert which so appeals to the appetite as ices or other frozen dishes, during the warm days. Here are half a dozen that will be appreciated by both the children and their elders:

Three Fruits Ice.

Put three cupsful of cold water, three cupsful of sugar and the grated rind of one orange and one lemon into a saucepan. Add one tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved in one cupful of boiling water. Simmer five minutes. Cut the pulp of three oranges, three grapefruit and three lemons into small pieces and add to the sirup when cold. ## QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN... The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Apropos of the milk question, one thing has always bothered me. Could you possibly tell me why "cream" is always more expensive than "milk?"

Yours truly,

SUE PERRIN TENDANT.

Answer—The reason cream is more expensive than milk is simply because it is harder for the cows to sit on little bottles.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

When I was in England, last summer, I was simply fascinated by the uniformed policemen in London. What struck my fancy most were the hats they wore. Every hat I saw had a chin strap on it. What I want to know is this, do they wear those chin straps to keep their hats on?

Truly yours,

SIM PILTON.

Answer—Don't be silly, of course not. Those chin straps are for the policemen to rest their jaws on after answering foolish questions.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I bought a horse from a man who told me the horse could beat anything

Here is an attractive suit of gray wide-ribbed jersey that will appeal to many women. The leather buttons and leath-like belt are navy blue.

In his class. The first race I put him in, he lost. Can you account for that? Yours truly, I. M. MORVICH.

Answer—He was out of his class.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I noticed a great number of young boys selling newspapers on the streets. One lad I saw could not have been more than ten years of age and he was carrying about fifty newspapers. Wouldn't you think they would make the poor little fellow tired?

Sincerely,

HUGH MANNY TAIRIAN. Answer—Not necessarily. He probably doesn't read them.

Dear Mr. Wynn: My boss is going to give me a day off next week. I would like to go some place, but I haven't any clothes to wear. What shall I do? Truly yours, TY PRYTER.

Answer—If you really haven't any clothes to wear, spend the day at Coney Island. © the Associated Newspapers WNU Service

MAKE CLAIMS OF NEW DEATH RAY

British Scientists Find Deadly "War Weapon."

Announcement has been made that a new death ray has been discovered by British scientists. Here is something, provided the scientists have made no mistake, which should bring peace with a vengeance. Meanwhile we must be content with the novelty of the thought. Not that the thought is original, but at last we have some reason to believe that it soon may be translated into practical form.

The alleged ray is devilish enough to satisfy the most exacting and refined homicidal complex. It can, if reports are true, be employed to transmit the germinating qualities of bacteria over great distance, or, to put it more succinctly, to broadcast disease.

Just picture to yourself the prestige of an operator who could send some deadly affliction from England to France, or even to America, while sitting safely in a little cage at London.

His prestige wouldn't last very long, of course, because the whole world would set out to find a preventive. There must be a preventive, you realize, otherwise this death ray would have exterminated all of us long ago.

Finally, and most consoling, the reported discovery may be just some more bunk. Every so often we hear about the advent of a new death ray. No less than a dozen have been advertised since the World War, but somehow they have failed to materialize.

The strangest part of it all is that men should continue to hunt for a death ray, just as if the race were not already in possession of a sufficient number of variety of murderous devices.

Obviously, the killer complex still flourishes. Though somewhat squeamish about messy, old-fashioned methods of slaughtering each other we are not prepared to give up the basic idea. What we really crave is refinement on the one hand and a reduction of risk on the other. Repugnance to the ancient style of hand to hand combat has played some part in perfecting war engines.

You don't get the intimate reactions from dropping a gas bomb or poisoning a water system that you do from seeing a foe die at your feet, nor does the prospect of getting killed by a bit of stray vapor or an unwary drink seem half so disagreeable as that of expiring under the bloodshot eyes of an enraged enemy.

A flood in China does not seem half as horrible as one close at home—which should reveal the comfort of broadcasting death. It would take the sting out of strife if we could sit safely down on this side of the Atlantic while sending death by air to people on the other side. No doubt they would return us the compliment, but even so the crude, personal element would be lacking.

One wonders if there ever will come a time when men will realize that certain discoveries are not worth making, or that intelligence can serve a better purpose than perfecting instruments of murder.—M. E. Tracy, in the New York World-Telegram.

City Fathers of Paris Turn Franklin Statue

When the new avenue "Paul Doumer" was opened, writes the Paris correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, the city fathers of Paris, who watch over all the city's statues with a paternal eye, decided that Benjamin Franklin was ill at ease. Benjamin Franklin sits in a comfortable armchair upon a fine pedestal at the corner of the new avenue and the Rue Franklin.

He would smile almost imperceptibly at the domes and towers of the Trocadero, a few yards away; but obviously he was disturbed by the new thoroughfare, especially as he could not see properly what was happening therein. So the city fathers' edict went forth:

"Benjamin Franklin—Left Turn!" "Thirty degrees" was the order given by the town-planning authorities. Workmen, having turned Benjamin Franklin round 30 degrees, then fixed his pedestal firmly in new asphalt.

SLICE ON COURSE GOLFING HAZARD; NO 'ACT OF GOD'

Hit in the eye by a golf ball as she was motoring, a New York woman took the eye to Judge Pettie's court the other day and sought damages in the amount of $1,000.

To this the golfer's counsel objected strongly, arguing that a gust of wind had carried the ball off its course, and that consequently, the accident was an "act of God."

The judge gave the case to the lady, who gets $750, and said in the course of a 19-page decision:

"It must be conceded that, although golf should not be deemed a hazardous game, a driven golf ball is a very dangerous missile and that its flight and direction cannot always be controlled by the player. The uncertainty is a part of the game. The ball, when struck, is liable to go down the fairway or fly off to the right or left or at any angle.

"The element of danger, therefore, though not intrinsic in the game itself, is nevertheless present, according to a given set of circumstances. "The situation is not changed by the fact that the act of propelling the ball is in itself not wrongful and is for a lawful purpose, that is, to play the game.

"It is not likely that the conclusions I have reached work undue hardship upon any golf club, since the risk may be readily insured against for a premium which in the nature of things will be quite small."—Literary Digest.

OUR FLAG OF FREEDOM

June 14 should be an event proudly celebrated in our land of the free—Flag Day. It is the emblem commemorating the 157th anniversary of American Independence, then consisting of the thirteen original states. This gay piece of colorful bunting is significant for its meaning.

Tradition has it that, on June 14, 1777, after Congress resolved what form the flag should take, George Washington and others authorized Betsy Ross, residing on Arch street, Philadelphia to "make a flag for our country" this flag to have thirteen stripes, stripes, alternate red and white, and thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation. A more beautiful design could never have been conceived, so Washington is quoted as saying: "We take the star from heaven, the red from our mother country, separating it by white stripes, thus showing that we have separated from her, and the white stripes shall go down to posterity representing liberty."

It is of interest to note that on July 7th, 1846, Old Glory was first raised in California over the custom house at Monterey. Of the flag it is said that "The Star Spangled Banner is both an emblem and an anthem." It was born an emblem on June 14, 1777 and became an anthem September 13, 1814, when it became a song and national anthem, composed by Francis Scott Key; a young American lawyer, while imprisoned during the War of 1812.

"DAD'S DAY"

Next Sunday is Father's Day, but there does not seem to be any sudden outbursts of stir or excitement from the family circle. Of course it is generally admitted that Dad is a good fellow, so long as he keeps the purse string well oiled with gladness. The past year has been one of his greatest tests of living up to the law as a good provider; it has been harder to earn and smile under both and all at the same time. The budget may have suffered some retrenchment and bank maneuvering, but Dad has been victorious in holding his citizenship in the household.

There must be some weight for praising Dad, for his day of recognition was first planned by a woman, Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, of Spokane, Washington, who started the movement back in 1910; so ever since this date, the fore-leader of the home has been elevated to a pedestal once a year. Most of the dads have had to build their own shrine and it has been a strong, one-man job, with most of them.

Buying the gasoline and paying for the blow-outs while Ma steps on the gas, is a Pa-problem in itself. There are other just as heavy responsibilities that remain as standing items on the expense list, but Dad must not get a fever under the collar if he expects to keep his percentage above the average.

Some day we may see fit to combine Mother's Day and Dad's Day, and celebrate it together as Parent's Day. This would be "honoring thy father and thy mother," as told in Holy Writ.

That ingrain human custom of getting something for nothing will never pass out—not with out present conduct of action. We, most of us, are apparently born creatures of greediness, for wanting to give as little as possible and receive in return the greatest possible amount—as Emerson says: "It is the one base thing, to receive and not to give." This is the law of the natural man, and no one can expect to achieve true greatness unless he breaks the shackles of selfishness. Rather than conform to the Golden Rule, many would deny the democratic principles laid down in our Constitution. There is hope for anyone who will see enough interest in his fellow-man to be willing to share or give more than as much as he receives. This motto would soon cure the economic depression.

June is the month of the longest days in the year; it is also the month of roses, brides and sweet girl graduates. June is one of the delightful months of the year—full of romance, song and summer anticipation. Unless you can sing praises in June, there is no beauty to be seen during any other month of the year. June is the full flower of life; it is nature developed into one complete whole with a majesty that outrivals everything else in life. As a month of blossoming beauty the charm of the rose is the outstanding queen with a challenge for its perfect decorative art and splendor. California is the home beautiful for fragrant flowers of which the rose in all its tint outnumbers all the rest.

The past week has been one of outstanding importance, because on June 6th occurred the anniversary date of the organization of the Young Men's Christian Association, founded by George Williams, in London, in 1844. Young Williams gathered together eleven other young men and held the first meeting, the original purpose of which was to help one another put into practice constructive and Christian fundamentals. The Y. M. C. A. during its ninety years of existence has grown to be a wonderful tower of moral strength in the world. Its success lies in the unselfish application of spiritual insight, devoted industry and warm good will toward all fellow-men.

One of the besetting sins so common on the floor of Congress is the habit of dealing cutting, verbal blows at each other among Congress members. After congress adjourns these astute members guilty of displaying spiteful insinuations and rebukes, should think of what they said and wish they had had enough grace and good judgment to "hold their tongue," for such seed-sowing is sure to result in a harvest of disdain and reproach upon their character. The 73rd Congress, is perhaps, about the worst one for making slurring speeches directed toward brother members. They may have plenty of time for regret and repentance over their caustic remarks.

MAGNUS G. KETTER

KETTER IS CARTOONIST WHO HAS SOMETHING MORE THAN ARTISTIC ABILITY

A great cartoonist must be a good artist but a good artist may be a flat failure as a cartoonist, for there are other things more important than ability as an artist that enter into the making of a good cartoonist.

The really great cartoonist must be a close student of history and of current events, and he must have something under his hat that will enable him to judge men and events correctly. He must have a keen sense of humor and he must have a heart in his body as well as an active brain in his head.

There are comparatively few cartoonists who measure up to this standard and one of them is Magnus G. Kettner, whose cartoons appear regularly in The Ocean Beach News.

There are some cartoonists who are recognized as masters of satire or of caricature and in whose work there is usually a sting for some person or some cause. Kettner's cartoons are of an entirely different character. They reflect a keen insight into human nature but do not rely for their appeal upon the stressing human frailties.

The actual drawing of a cartoon is the least of his worries, Kettner concedes. The brain-cogs must be started working long before the first strokes are made on paper.

The night is the best time to think, the day the best to draw, Kettner has found. "Early in the evening, when the body is tired," he says, "the muscles become willing to relax, having lost the nervous energy of the morning, when all thoughts like to be accompanied by action. This militates against creative thinking during the early hours of the day, but affords ideal conditions for crystallizing thoughts or ideas which already have been evolved. If I want to get the most work done in the daytime, I've got to figure out a great deal of it beforehand—on my way home, or at dinner, or at some time before I arrive back at the workshop. Then the rest is easy."

Follow Kettner's cartoons as they appear in this paper and you will have no difficulty in understanding why they have such a universal appeal.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY, POINT LOMA

Speaking on the theme, "Death, the Mystic Birth" in the Theosophical Temple on Point Loma last Sunday afternoon, Miss Florence Collis said in part: At death the physical veils disappear and the higher parts of man's nature are free to follow their own paths in realms which are native to them. At the moment of death these higher parts vision the life just past, taking account of the experiences passed thru, and adding the fruit of these experiences unto themselves, thus building the character from life to life. Death is not the cessation of consciousness, but more truly a change of consciousness. Man's consciousness during this life is on the earth plane. Behind the physical world are countless other worlds, the inner, causal realms and within man are the potencies of all planes and grades of consciousness in the universe, and so-called 'death' is a glorious consummation, as well as a perfect preparation for future evolutionary progress in further lives on earth."

The speaker was supported in answering questions by Mrs. Lambert and Professors B. de Zirkoff and Charles M. Savage.

Next Sunday, June 17th, the subject will be "Psychic Pitfalls" which will be introduced by Miss Alice Pearce.

Tonight the Katherine Tingley lodge of San Diego will discuss a special article in the Theosophical forum at 7:30 p. m., and at 8 o'clock Foster Griffith will chair a discussion on "Outline on Time Cycles." With the exception of the last Friday-in-the-month meetings these studies are for members of the Society only.

CHURCHES OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

"As birds flying, so will the Lord of hosts defend Jerusalem; defending also he will deliver it; and passing over he will preserve it." These words of Isaiah are the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "God the Preserver of Man" on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

One of the Bible selections in the Lesson-Sermon cites the verses from Luke: "And it came to pass, as he went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread on the sabbath day, that they watched him. And, behold, there was a certain man before him which had the dropsy. And Jesus answering spake unto the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath day? And they held their peace. And he took him, and healed him, and let him go." A correlative passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, includes the statements: "Christian Science deals wholly with the mental cause in judging and destroying disease. . . . Christian Science exterminates the drug, and rests on Mind alone as the curative Principle, acknowledging that the divine Mind has all power."

WARREN-WALKER FACULTY HAS COMMENCEMENT DINNER

The faculty of the Warren-Walker school were entertained last Thursday evening with a dinner at Vincents. Cards suggestive of commencement exercises marked the dinner places and attractive corsages of daisies and ferns were a courtesy to each of the members. Summer school courses at the Warren-Walker school have been definitely outlined and information regarding them is obtainable. A most interesting course in clay modelling, applied arts and sculpturing is being offered under the direction of Miss Barbara Shultz. This course is open to people of all ages. Miss Grace Walker of Brawley, California, is offering special courses in music. Captain Walker will assist in the instruction of the academic and commercial high school subjects.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY NEWS

After the regular business meeting held Thursday evening a most delightful birthday party was given those members whose birthdays fall during the summer months. The pink and green motif was carried out in the beautiful floral table decorations and in the corsages presented the honored guests. A large birthday cake with candles was the centerpiece. This was served with ice cream and punch. The guests of honor were Anna Forsythe, Helen Parks, Olive Watts, Edith Steele and Elizabeth Finley. Two little junior auxiliary members who happened to be present with their mothers were also honored as their birthdays came in the summer, too. These guests were Viola Vaterlaus and Aileen Eulberg. The committee especially in charge of the affair was composed of Pearl Wood and Marion Sharpe. The next regular meeting will be social night. The auxiliary will meet with the post and stage a picnic on the beach, Thursday June 21, supper about 5:30.

The regular meeting of the junior auxiliary will be held in the Legion hall, June 21, at 4:30 just preceding the beach party. At the last business meeting it was decided to hold our election of officers for the coming year, the first business meeting in July instead of in September as heretofore. As our meeting falls on a holiday the next business meeting will be at the usual hour, but on Friday, July 6. Delegates for the convention will also be elected at this meeting. The business meeting will be followed by the usual social hour and a very pleasant surprise for all present.

Chamber Commerce Holds Regular Monthly Meeting

A regular monthly meeting of the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce was held Monday evening. The first committee report was made by Messrs. McElwee and Dumont who reported a successful trip to the office of Fred Rhodes in regard to improvement and repair on the beach which has since been made.

The secretary was instructed to write headquarters of the SERA in San Diego, asking for band concerts on the beach, from the newly planned brass band.

E. E. Steele reported Federal food shipments had now been stopped and the county would find it necessary to take up the supplying of some 200 in the North Shore district who have been supplied from the local office.

A committee report was heard from those who had sought the building of a trail along the rocks from the Silver Spray plunge to Sunset Cliffs park. The secretary was instructed to communicate with Fred Rhodes to see what progress was being made on this project.

A report was made on collections coming into the organization and a number of letters read from inland people who were seeking accommodations of houses and apartments for the summer.

Further discussion was had and appropriation made for preliminary supplies for the Ocean Beach Old Timers Barbecue.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR REPORTED BY GROWING SCHOOL

Tomorrow marks the closing of a very successful year's work for The Warren-Walker School. Mrs. Walker launched this venture February 1, 1933 with an enrollment of two boys. Ten students were in attendance during the summer while the year just closing saw twenty-one students being instructed by three full-time teachers. The enthusiasm of these instructors in their work was communicated to the pupils with the result of a most happy and profitable year of accomplishment. The school has provided transportation facilities for pupils who live outside of Ocean Beach and the enrollment has included pupils from as far as the North Park section of San Diego.

The summer session will open on Monday, June 18th. Arrangements have been made for private lessons in music and art and in high school subjects in addition to the elementary curriculum of the regular school year. Phone numbers and address will be found in an advertisement in this issue.

Orpheum Theatre Reopening Tonight

Announcement was made yesterday that the splendid Orpheum theatre located at the corner of 5th and B streets, was to be reopened Friday of this week as a high class house of entertainment, featuring both stage shows and pictures.

The Orpheum theatre will be under the direct management of Harry L. Hartman a veteran showman, who has been a resident of this city for a number of years and who has been credited with giving to San Diegans the highest class of entertainment during all this time. In his announcement of the opening, he said that the initial program starting Friday June 15, would embrace on the screen a rollicking comedy, "Orders is Orders" starring Charlotte Greenwood, together with Jimmy Gleason and the distinguished English actor, Cyril Maude, who will be remembered for his superb performance of "Grumpy" on both the American stage and screen. In addition there is a carefully chosen selection of short subjects, embracing a premier news reel, a two reel comedy, a scenic novelty and a cartoon. Besides the screen entertainment, Mr. Hartman said that he has booked for his stage entertainment Ted Mack and his band, who have been touring with huge success from New York to the coast. Mr. Mack brings with him some exceedingly clever artists, it is said.

It will be the policy of the Orpheum theatre management to give the people of this city what they want at a low cost. Matinee seats will be twenty cents except Saturday Sunday and holidays and evening prices thirty cents for the lower floor and twenty cents for balcony.

Associated with Mr. Hartman as the treasurer of the operating company, the Sun Theatres, Inc., is J. Lawton Kendrick, who has been a resident of San Diego for some years also, and who is known to thousands for his management of the Balboa Theatre.—advertisement.

SYNOPSIS

Ranceford Kershaw, last male member of the Kershaw clan, dies suddenly while riding with his daughter, Lorry. At the close of the Mexican war, Robin Kershaw, with his bride, rode into northeastern California. Here he found an ideal valley for cattle raising. They christened it Eden Valley. Below Eden Valley is a less valuable tract which Kershaw's wife christens Forlorn Valley. Joel Hensley, a Texan, settles in the lower half of the valley. There is bad blood over fences and water for irrigation. Kershaw kills Hensley and the blood feud is on. By 1917, Rance Kershaw, his son Owen, and daughter Lorry are all that remains of one clan. Nate Tichenor is the sole survivor on the Hensley side. He goes to help Lorry in her car and finds her father has died of heart disease. Silas Babson, Forlorn Valley banker, schemes to control the irrigation and hydro-electric possibilities of Eden Valley.

CHAPTER IV—Continued

Having decided upon his course of action, Babson fell into a refreshing slumber; the next morning he was down at the bank at eight o'clock, looking quite his old self and wearing a white rose in his lapel. Emblematic of hope, doubtless.

Shortly after the bank had opened crippled Rance Kershaw limped in to borrow a thousand dollars to meet his monthly payroll. Babson demurred to loaning it, but finally compromised with a warning that such indiscriminate borrowing would have to cease very soon.

"By the way," he said, as he initiated his approval on the note, "are you going to retain your lease of the Bar H ranch?"

"I think not," Kershaw replied. "It expires next month, but I'll be hanged if I know where I can get the money to pay for a year in advance."

"Better retrench," Babson advised. "Let the Bar H ranch go, sell off half your cattle, even at the present low prices, get out of debt, quit paying interest and be happy. Where does Nate Tichenor reside now?"

"I don't know. I only know his lawyer's address. Why do you ask?"

"There was a man from San Francisco in here some time back. He'd been looking at the Bar H ranch and had a notion he'd like to buy it. I thought perhaps I might get in touch with Tichenor, negotiate a sale of his ranch for him and clean up a few dollars in commission. And yet, if you renew the lease it may militate against a sale."

"Go ahead," Rance Kershaw replied sadly. "I'm not going to renew the lease. You've been pretty good to me, Silas, and I won't stand in the way of your turn of a profit."

"Thanks," Babson murmured. "And this lawyer's address?"

Kershaw gave it to him, and a week later an attorney in San Francisco wrote Nate Tichenor, in care of the latter's attorney, requesting a price on the Bar H ranch in behalf of a client of his.

Ten days later Babson knew that the Bar H ranch was not for sale; whereas the banker had an immediate return of his former nervousness and depression and went home at noon. The situation was thoroughly beyond his comprehension; he had decided Nate Tichenor would sell the Bar H ranch and Nate Tichenor had disappeared.

Of course, in a larger sense, Nate Tichenor's decision not to sell could not affect the interests of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district (Mr. Babson had decided to call it that), since the district could acquire the property via the condemnation suit route.

Immediately after church the following Sunday he motored up to Eden Valley, ostensibly to fish but with the intention of spending several hours inspecting the dam-site and lake-site. To his signal perturbation he discovered in the gorge a camp of three tents, a motor chuck-wagon, and five shirt-sleeved young men playing a modest game of poker under the shade of a cottonwood tree. Under an adjacent tree a field drafting table stood; it had a sheet of tracing paper tacked to it and hard by this table a surveying instrument was set up.

"Hello," Babson hailed them cheerfully, confident that his rod and reel would excuse him of undue inquisitiveness in penetrating to the camp. "What are you boys doing here?"

"Playing poker, sir. How about taking a hand? Twenty-five cent ante and a dollar limit."

Mr. Babson, not being accustomed to such gentle rebukes, flushed and passed on down the creek, leaving the engineering crew to their non-sabbatical pleasure.

Evidently Tichenor had sold, or was about to sell, his dam-site and lake-site to a power company, which had sent an engineering crew to make a preliminary survey and report before deciding to close the deal. His curiosity aroused, Babson crossed the creek, climbed the side of the hill, and was rewarded by finding the stakes of the engineering party. He followed them readily; they led him over the approximate route which any man with a fair eye for contours would have selected for the ditch to lead the water to the penstocks.

As a country banker Silas Babson had a far better knowledge of the law than most laymen; hence he realized now that if Nate Tichenor's dam-site and lake-site had been acquired by a power company, which is a public service corporation, no other public service corporation could condemn its property! Hence, once more the Babson soul was steeped in despair.

The following morning Mr. Henry Rookby, his cashier-paying-teller-receiving-teller and confidential man, came to Babson's desk and laid upon it a copy of the latest edition of the Gold Run Nugget. Mr. Rookby had marked, in blue crayon, an item under the head of Real-Estate Transfers.

The item recorded the transfer by deed of gift, of four thousand acres, more or less, of certain lands, from Ranceford Kershaw to Lorraine Kershaw.

"Can't be a portion of the Circle ranch," Babson decided, and drew down from its case a map of the county.

Mr. Babson made a most surprising discovery. He had always assumed that Rance Kershaw owned no land east of the fence that divided the Circle K from the Bar H. To his amazement he had now discovered that Lorry Kershaw was the owner of four thousand acres, more or less, in that portion of Eden Valley which, in the event of a dam being built in the gorge, must constitute all or the greater portion of the area that must be inundated when the dam filled up! And Babson had always thought Nate Tichenor owned that land!

He could have cheered. No matter what Nate Tichenor might do with his dam-site now, he would have to consult Lorry Kershaw before selling it to a power company, and Babson thought he knew what the girl's answer would be. A deadlock between the two survivors of the feud!

"Got to get that four thousand acres more or less," Mr. Babson exulted. "The girl will sell to me. You bet she will. And then I'll do some trading with Nate Tichenor."

Within the week he had arranged his personal finances and purchased from the Savings Bank of San Francisco the first mortgage that the latter institution held on the Circle K ranch. With the mortgage in his possession, Babson dictated to Ranceford Kershaw a letter as firm as granite and as cold as a penguin's tail. He informed Kershaw that unless the mortgage was paid within five days a suit in foreclosure would be instituted. Then he dictated another letter, which he signed as president of the Bank of Valley Center, calling some thirty thousand dollars of Kershaw's notes.

He was striking at Rance Kershaw over the shoulder of the latter's daughter, quite confident that she would protect her father when Babson suggested that, in return for a renewal of the unsecured notes and mortgage, she should sell him at a reasonable price that four thousand acres with which he planned to embarrass Nate Tichenor!

He realized he must keep such a deal in abeyance until he could organize the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district, for, with the district formed before Nate Tichenor could complete his deal with the power company, the district could enter a condemnation suit against Tichenor, and thus block the aspirations of the power company.

He distrusted the local legal talent in a crisis loaded with potential legal dynamite, so that plight he went to "Better Retrench," Babson Advised.

"Let the Bar H Ranch Go."

San Francisco to engage the services of a legal firm noted throughout the state for its knowledge of water law. Indeed, Babson was rather in a hurry to get out of town, for he considered it good strategy to be absent when old Rance Kershaw should come into the bank to argue and plead. Leave a frightened, worried man alone for four days and he's much easier to handle on the fifth. So Babson departed, unconscious of the fact that his bluff, complicated with the sudden return of Nathan Tichenor to Eden Valley, was to kill Rance Kershaw and turn the current of the Kershaw hatred upon Silas Babson and all his works and pomps.

CHAPTER V

Nate Tichenor, from early boyhood, had had more than his share of experience with sudden death and tragedy, and it had developed in him a certain stolidity and philosophy in such emergencies. For ten minutes he held Lorry Kershaw's head against his shoulder and neither spoke nor moved.

"Now, then, Miss Kershaw," he soothed presently, "this is no time for weep. You're a Kershaw and none of your clan ever needed time out for that. You said you wanted to take your father home?"

She nodded drearly. The Kershaws, like the Hensleys, always buried their own dead.

"And I wouldn't, if I were you, permit my mind to dwell on the thought of your absolute loneliness in the world," he continued. "That way madness lies. I know. I've been through all that. After two years in the A. E. F., where, it seemed to me, I lost every comrade I managed to achieve an affection for; after losing my mother and aunts while I was in France and realizing I hadn't a single friend in the community where I was born and raised, I found myself, when the war ended, the loneliest human being imaginable. Often I wanted to come back to Eden Valley and know you better but—"

"Yes, I understand. Father was what he was, poor dear."

"Well, be that as it may, you're not nearly so badly off as you think you are, and one of these days, when you have time to think about it, I'll tell you why." He was almost abrupt. "I suppose we'd better get along."

"Yes, I suppose so," she agreed and started her motor. Nate Tichenor followed in his car. Arrived at the Circle K headquarters no men came out to meet them.

"Where are your riders?" he queried. "They started with the cattle drive up into the forest reserve this morning."

He lifted Rance Kershaw's body out of the car, carried it into the house and disposed of it on Kershaw's bed.

He drew a sheet over the corpse and rejoined the girl in the living room. "I reckon," he said, in the homely mountain idiom, "you Kershaws never have any truck with undertakers. Seems to me the Kershaws don't use preachers, either."

"No, we just read the service ourselves."

"The Hensleys always did, too. Lock the house up and drive in to Valley Center with me in my car. Have you in mind some woman friend you can bring back with you to keep you company?"

"I have no friends, Nate Tichenor."

He frowned, then smiled faintly. "I forgot we're the last survivors of two clans that were beyond the pale. Well, we'll hire somebody. There must be a practical nurse in Valley Center. When we get there I'll telegraph my old superintendent, Rube Tenney, to come up here with his wife and two children."

She yielded without argument to his suggestions—commands, rather.

Doctor Donaldson made no comment when, in his office an hour later, Lorry Kershaw informed him of her father's death. He readily issued a death certificate. He was a gruff old fellow and not in the least politic, as Tichenor realized when Donaldson growled:

"So you two have buried the hatchet, eh?"

He flushed as Tichenor's bleak blue eyes rebuked him.

"It's none of my business, of course," Donaldson apologized. "I merely hoped for Miss Lorry's sake—"

Nate Tichenor smiled at him.

"I understand, doctor. No offense if your intentions were kindly."

"Thank you, they were. When will the funeral take place?"

Five Deer Increase to 162 in Six Years at Michigan Zoology Museum

In only six years, three bucks and two does released on a reserve near Pinckney increased to a total of 162 deer, according to a tally made by a group of naturalists of the University of Michigan Museum of Zoology, in the first actual count of deer ever to be made on a measured area in Michigan.

"Although most of us believed that the deer herd was increasing very fast during the past few years, this number of 162 deer is much greater than was generally believed to be present," commented the keeper of the reserve for the University of Michigan museum. The use of the reserve has been given to the university as an area for biological observation.

About thirty people, which included many members of the scientific staff of the university museum and the Michigan conservation department, participated in the deer drive and tal-

"Tomorrow, at two o'clock," Lorry answered him.

"I'll telephone the coroner," Donaldson went on. "He'll take my word for it that an inquest isn't necessary, and issue the burial permit."

While Lorry Kershaw waited in the car, Nate Tichenor scouted around town and succeeded in engaging the services of a Miss Lizzie Bachman, who in her youth had almost graduated from a nurse's training school in San Francisco.

Not for considerable would Miss Bachman have missed this assignment. It was too meaty with gossip. Nate Tichenor dancing attendance on Lorry Kershaw!

Tichenor's next action was to call upon the editor of the local weekly paper, the Valley Center Register. "I am Nathan Tichenor, of Eden Valley," he announced. "I do not seem to remember you. Apparently you came to Valley Center after I left Eden Valley."

He Lifted Rance Kershaw's Body Out of the Car.

The editor said his name was Joe Brainerd and that he was pleased to meet Mr. Tichenor.

"Mr. Ranceford Kershaw died about three hours ago, very suddenly," Brainerd, Nate told him. "No, I didn't kill him. He perished of heart disease and will be buried in the Kershaw family cemetery in Eden Valley at two p. m. tomorrow. Friends and neighbors are invited to attend. And may I ask, Mr. Brainerd, as a special favor to Miss Lorry Kershaw and myself, that you do not take this opportunity to print a couple of columns of ancient history? Although you do not know it, the Hensley-Kershaw feud ended in 1917. Both Miss Kershaw and I would like to think that the matter is by way of being forgotten and we'll both be very grateful for your co-operation."

"My dear sir," Brainerd replied with dignity, "you mustn't presume to formulate my editorial policy."

Nate Tichenor looked Brainerd over bleakly. "Very well, run it. Next week there'll be another newspaper in this town, with a real newspaper man in charge, and you'll have a taste of active competition. And now that we understand each other, I want you to run off a hundred black-bordered death notices and send a man to paste them up in various conspicuous places around the town. That used to be the custom in this country. A few people might like to know of Rance Kershaw's death, so they can come to his funeral as advertised."

He wrote out the copy for the job-printer, paid his bill and departed without further conversation. The editor put on his hat and walked over to the local hotel upon the veranda of which sat Mr. William Rooney, the deputy sheriff of the Valley Center district.

"Bill," he queried, "what do you know about Nathan Tichenor?"

"Nothing bad, why?"

"Would you say that a threat of his should be taken seriously?"

TO BE CONTINUED.

Howe About:

Women
Wives
Good Behavior

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

By ED HOWE

THE roving correspondent of the Kansas City Star once called on me and said: "The women all say you are a woman hater. How about it?"

I said I wasn't, and that all the women didn't say so. In support of this statement, I gave him a letter from a woman in Texas, but he made no reference to it in the two columns he wrote about me. The woman said: "I am barely nineteen, and have a deformed body. I am familiar with you through the Kansas City Star, and I want to give the devil his due, for you are the writer who has done me most good. Being a cripple, I have a wicked and fast temper, but you have taught me to control it for my own benefit. Your constant teaching that one should behave for one's own sake, as a matter of profit, because it is finally the easiest and best way, I have been able to understand and practice with more success than any other."

Early man had a strong disposition to whip his wife, and often did. I have seen a picture in an old book of an angry husband entering the house carrying a switch, and of his wife cowering and begging for mercy, as I did as a child in the presence of an angry father. (In this old picture, also, is the figure of a woman evidently the wife's mother, who begged for mercy, too, as my mother begged for mercy for me.)

Wives have taken the switch from the hands of brutal husbands. Men have granted equal rights, but the women are still screaming as though regularly whipped. Men of today submit to the gross absurdity of police women, stateswomen, but the women are as busy as ever in telling of wrongs long since remedied.

As far back as the time of Silerius women insisted on rights that were actually wrongs. Silerius in his memoirs tells of one of his wives going bare-legged, although she was of considerable age, and it didn't look well. Silerius objected to the custom. Any reproach of women today sets them screaming as though the reproach were a beating.

Men of the present generation are the heirs of the experience of men of an older time. Thus we have learned of the greater convenience of obtaining water by turning a tap, instead of a more troublesome journey to a spring. The modern bank, hotel, railroad and school are merely cogs in the wheel of civilization as it goes round endlessly, and is slowly improved because of the disposition of men to seek greater conveniences. A clean, dependable man is a development of good behavior, as is a useful machine or system lightening our labors and our worries.

If I should marry again (I have about as much notion of it as of being born again) I think I should relieve my friends of the bother of a public ceremony. In our extravagant and wasteful American way, marrying has become more troublesome than a fire. The bride is worn out, the father bankrupt, and all those who read the prenuptial notices in the newspapers are disgusted. There is also the trouble of attendance on the ceremony and reception, to say nothing of presents. Men especially do not wish to attend or buy, and for days previously are glowered at by wives who know they are trying to get out of it; for wives love weddings.

Why would it not be a good idea to give half the present amount wasted on weddings to starving old soldiers, the poor, union labor organizations, railroads and bankers in distress.

It would be a great convenience to me if some of the army of writers now useless would devote their time to reading, and print collections of the occasional good things found in novels, essays, histories and the mass of writing of every kind. I thank James Truslow Adams for a sentiment he lately buried in a book, and which I happened to encounter: "The wisdom of the past," he says, "is not to be undone in the present by a few telephones, motor cars or radios."

The first writing was on clay tablets, or on paper laboriously made from marsh plants, and there was far too little of it. In these days of paper easily made by tons from wood pulp, and of typewriters, stenographers, movable type and printing presses, there is far too much of it. The old-time men soon settled their differences by resort to fists, battle axes, lances, rocks or spears; there was at least occasional peace, but owing to the ease of writing the differences of modern men are never settled.

Every one is entitled to weak moments. I do not greatly criticize them in friends who have treated me as well as I treat them.

A woman who seems to be somewhat elderly writes me: "Frequently you give me hard rubs, and I know they are deserved: Being a woman, I know a woman can be the most unreasonable thing under the sun: I know, because I've been guilty: One has to get near the jumping off place before being able to exercise that much candor."

KEEP IN MEMORY ONLY THE HAPPY THINGS OF LIFE

There are many men who say they are philosophers when, indeed, they are no such thing. Anyway, they are not true philosophers because they voice mere platitudes and do not search deeply enough into the human heart.

But, happily, there is, now and then, a man who can be called a true philosopher and is really that, and one of them spent an hour with us under the stars, lately, in our little high house in the hills, writes John Steven McGroarty, in the Los Angeles Sunday Times Magazine.

He laid before us many solutions for the problems, the vexations, the disappointments and even the sorrows of life. We recall all that he said, but that which impressed us most was the doctrine of remembering only happy things. Regrets and sins should be forgotten. What use to keep them in mind? They are things that have passed. So, let the dead past bury its dead.

If there has been in life one morning of happy laughter, remember it. Keep it deep in your heart. Let the road you have traveled be a road of glad memories—a night when the moon was on the sea, a wayside roof that sheltered you, and you were content with having what your heart desired. A misty morning, a little river, voices of great trees when you were happy. Keep them deep in your heart with their memories.

It is our thoughts that make life. So, that life may be lived best, remember only happy hours.

All this, and more, was said to us under the stars, when night was upon the hills.

Effects of War Gases

Most physicians believed at the close of the World war that the results of the gas attacks during the war would surely be the development of tuberculosis and bronchial troubles among the victims. Fifteen years have passed without the feared after effects.

A careful check by the War department and the Veterans bureau has revealed that very few of the tubercular and bronchial cases can be laid at the door of gas attacks. In most of these cases it is believed that the germs were already present and not caused by the gas. Medical officers believe that enough time has passed to show up any after effects caused by the gas experience.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Events in the Lives of Little Men

(Copyright, W. N. U.)

THE CHEERFUL CHERUB

I don't get accustomed to living somehow; I welcome each day with fresh glee. I appeal to my own sense of humor so much That life is one long joke to me.

BLOWOUT

"Smith is lucky!"
"How so?"
"He wants to buy an automobile but hasn't the price."

THERE YOU ARE

"Does Careless own his house?"
"Rents it."
"How do you know?"
"He scratches matches on the paint."

POOR EYESIGHT

"The average woman seems to lead an aimless life."
"Well, it's her misfortune rather than her fault that she is unable to throw straight."

SOME EFFORT

"Do you love me, Dick?"
"Huh! Do you suppose I'd be laughing my head off every night at your father's stale jokes if I didn't love you?"

DEEPER 'N' DEEPER

"Is Smith up to his ears in debt?"
"Worse; it has come to other people's ears, too."

ENOUGH SAID

Miss Mush—Have you ever found your deal?
Mr. Wise—Madam, I'm a married man.

Eek!

Another hospital anecdote concerns a prospective father who dashed to the telephone, when the nurse brought the glad tidings of the arrival of his first-born, called up a pal and yelled, "It's a baby!"
The doctor overheard and chuckled, "I wonder if he expected a set of dishes!"

Scraps of Humor

SMOOTH STRATEGY

"In the course of time you must have made many enemies," answered Senator Sorghum. "Occasionally, of course, I have provoked active expressions of antagonism which I was sure I could argue down. But I never deliberately make an enemy except when I feel that I need him in my business."

Excited

A primary class had been studying about exclamation marks and the teacher explained that these were used to show unusual feeling or excitement. The next day when little Beverly was reading, she stopped suddenly and exclaimed:
"Oh, Mrs. — here's an excited mark, right in our reader!"

Not Quite the Same

Henpecked Husband (who has just overheard his wife scolding the maid)—You and I both seem to be in the same unfortunate position, Mary. Maid—Not likely. I'm giving her a week's notice tomorrow.—London Weekly.

Retort Courteous

She had just refused his invitation to ride in his car.
"I have driven that car for seven years, and never had a wreck," he defended warmly.
"You mean," said she, "that you have driven that wreck for seven years, and never had a car."

Brought a Lot of Grief

"What invention do you figure is one we best could do without?"
"The fountain pen—without it my name never would have gotten on a lot of dotted lines."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Broken to Harness

"Just why do you want a married man to work for you, rather than a bachelor?" asked the curious chap.
"Well," sighed the boss, "the married men don't get so upset if I yell at them."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Hope Springs Eternal

Miss Slimmons—Why, you weighed yourself only an hour ago.
Miss Ada Pose—I know, and I've been fasting ever since and I thought I might have gone off some.

FROCK FOR LITTLE ONE WILL PLEASE HER, AND MOTHER

PATTERN 9695

A small girl will look very sweet in this little dress. The yoke is scalloped in front and plain in back. There are little bows which tie the sleeves very smartly, and a cunning collar. Her mother can make the dress, omitting the lower part of the sleeves and the collar, as the small sketch shows. Use the pattern to make several different dresses; for example, it's cute made of a cotton print, and equally dainty in one of the pastel shades in plain silk or linen, or dimity.

Pattern 9695 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8, and 10. Size 4 requires 2½ yards 36-inch fabric and ¾ yard contrasting.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 W. Eighteenth St., New York, N. Y.

BIRTH OF ROMANCE

He was spouting with great vigor against corporal punishment for boys, which he declared never did any good. "Take my own case," he exclaimed. "I was never caned but once in my life, and that was for speaking the truth."
"Well," retorted somebody in the audience, "it cured you."—Vart Hem.

General Opinion

Percy Pinfeather—You may not think so, but some of the fellows think I've got a rattling good head on me.

Dolly Dill—I dare say you have. I've always considered you more or less rattle-brained.

Quite Warm Anyway

Joe—Did your wife have you on the carpet for getting home late last night?

Jim—Well, it may have been the carpet she had me on, but it seemed to me more like a red-hot stove.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Often Mentioned

A wife, waiting at her husband's office, began a conversation with the office boy.

"Does he ever talk about the cat, his favorite house pet, down here at the office?" the wife asked.

"Yes—he does. He calls it battle-axe," the boy replied.

Should Wear Them

Mrs. Youngwife—Would you stoop to go through your husband's pockets at night?

Mrs. Oldwife—I have to stoop to do it; when he comes in at night he throws his clothes on the floor.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Practice

"How gracefully he seems to eat corn on the cob."
"He ought to. He's a piccolo player."

THE FEATHERHEADS

I'M GOING FOR MY RIDING LESSON—HOW IS THE WEATHER?

IT LOOKS AS IF IT IS GOING TO REIN!

WHY—WHAT? WHAT DO YOU MEAN?

YOU'RE ONLY WEARING ONE SPUR!

Is She Smart!

DON'T TRY TO SADDLE ANY OF YOUR HUMOR ON ME!

SAY! YOU AREN'T GOING OUT LIKE THAT, ARE YOU? YOU ARE NOT COMPLETELY DRESSED!!

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

Tearing Himself Away

On Monday evening local police were called to intersection of Coronado and Cable streets by someone shooting firearms. Officers answered the call and found no one there but just a little later heard a shot at Bacon and Niagara where they went and found two men who dropped guns when the officers approached. They were arrested and turned out to be D. M. and P. N. Cantrell of 4921 Del Monte avenue. They are both service men and next day in Judge Chambers court were fined $50 each, though the fine was suspended and the firearms confiscated by the court.

HORSE SHOE TOURNAMENT
LOST BY LOCAL MEN

Plain and fancy horse shoe pitching by right and left handers was the order of the day here Saturday when teams from Balboa park came out and beat the Ocean Beach men in a more or less one-sided contest. Local participants have been in few contests and are reported as not being up to par, due to the excitement. The Balboa park members have been practicing for years with numerous matches, which is said to account for most of the 70 games played going to the visitors.

Ocean Beach men will continue their practice and hope to make a better showing in a return match later in the summer.

SENT TO PATTON
STATE HOSPITAL

Wm. Dawson, Ocean Beach resident for a number of years, was arrested by Lieut. Adams in charge of the local police sub-station June 4th, being sent to the county psychopathic hospital for examination. A hearing was held June 7th and the man was committed to the State hospital at Patton by Judge C. N. Andrews.

PLANS FOR LAMB
DRIVE COMPLETED

Three thousand meat markets operated by Safeway Stores, national retail food concern, will launch their third annual mass sales drive on lamb beginning Friday morning June 15th, and ending Saturday evening June 23rd, according to an announcement just received from G. L. Rutledge. This effort will cover eighteen entire states west of the Mississippi. It is the outcome of five months of intensive planning.

Although the need for over-supply relief has been reduced to a minimum by the effective selling momentum created by such nationally operating concerns, this lamb campaign will be brought more forcefully to the attention of the public than any held heretofore.

Starting mainly with the West's leading newspapers, all known advertising media will be employed. All cattle growing fraternities, meat institutes and farm bureaus are interested in this effort to again benefit the worthy industry of the lamb producers. Public officials have issued favorable and encouraging statements on past campaigns of a similar nature.

Additional men will probably be employed to take care of the increased trade, G. L. Rutledge concludes and from past experience, gratifying results, beneficial for everyone from producer to consumer, are expected. Last year Safeway Stores bought more than 1,023,000 lambs, according to their local executives and this year they expect to increase their purchases so as to give further support to the growers.

O. B. THEOSOPHICAL CLUB

Our past has been evolution's night. Our present is its dawn. Our future shall be its perfect day. The race has come far through the chaos of contending forces in which might has been the measure of right. But think of the coming results of evolution—an ear when love shall replace force, when selfish desires shall be transmuted into noble service. A further study of this subject will be carried on at the meeting of the Ocean Beach Theosophical club on Thursday evening, June 21, at 7:30 p. m. in Room 4 of the Ocean Beach school.

RETURN OF CARLSON

Ocean Beachites must always find an interest in the movements of W. H. Carlson, "Billy" its spectacular boomer. His absence in the spring of 1890 was cause for much comment locally; the news value of his return being evident from the following article in the Union of April 21st:

"Billy Is Back
Carlson Returns from his Wanderings to his Native Heath He Asserts the Success of his Mission and Smiles—Talks of his Alleged Enemies and Smiles and Still Says That He Will Have the First Transcontinental Line Here

The redoubtable Billy Carlson is once more in the city after an absence of several weeks, during which time he visited nearly every railroad center in the country. He went immediately to his home on E street at the corner of Union, and did not come into the business portion of the city, preferring as he explained matters to spend his 26th birthday (yesterday) in perfect quiet.

He was found however yesterday afternoon in his retirement and was recognized by his smile, although his side whiskers were missing. You can sail into Billy like the old Harry, and the next time he meets you he will set 'em up. That is Billy's strong point, he never gets mad; that is why everybody thinks a whole houseful of Billy.

So as he was filled plumb full of railroad news he talked freely and the reporter did not take up any time by interrupting him. His talk was largely concerning the Terminal road....

A few days later the following appeared:

"BILLY IS BOILING
Those Rails Taken from the Yuma Road must Go Back."

We always understood that the rails which were taken up in the night belonged to the Ocean Beach road. This article therefore is illuminating:

"Since Carlson's return he has not been idle. He has no idea of lying quietly and permitting himself or his road to be knocked out entirely in one round. He is at work just as he said he would be, and still asserts that he will be on top within a short time.

It will be remembered that about the time Carlson was trying to get up a boom in Los Angeles, San Diego and Yuma railroad stock at Salt Lake City, the Pacific Coast Steamship company sent out its teamsters and took up a considerable portion of Billy's track across the flats, to the north of the city. This work was all done between two days and it was naturally supposed that something was peculiar about the transaction. The steamship company explained that the peculiarity occurred some several months before when William stole the rails from the steamship company.

At any rate the rails were taken away and dropped at the warehouse of the steamship company at the foot of 4th street, whence they were afterwards shipped. The report of this act on the part of the steamship company was telegraphed all over the country and one of its effects was to stop all prospect of selling the stock of the company, at least in Salt Lake City, and in that round Billy was knocked out, having to return all moneys paid him on account of stock."
